

Exhibitionist Sought By Campus Security

by Gary Morris

Gene Eppley Library is experiencing another problem besides overdue books. An elusive exhibitionist has plagued female library patrons on four different occasions since this semester started.

Campus Security Lieutenant Jerry Herbster related the incident. "As far as we know it's only one individual that follows a definite pattern," Herbster revealed.

He comes on Sunday evenings, Herbster said, usually goes to the second floor of the library, chooses a secluded area and exposes himself to females sitting alone.

Trouser Drop

"He drops his trousers and gets away before action can be taken against him," he said.

Campus Security hopes to nab the exhibitionist on his next visit. "We fully expect him to come back again, it's only a matter of time," Herbster said. "We want him badly."

Actually the suspect was detained momentarily on one occasion but was able to "wrestle himself away from a security officer."

Security Set

Herbster said that Campus Security is laying for the man. They are planting female security personnel who have whistles. Next time he comes they plan to blow the whistle on the suspect and male security people will be on the scene at once, Herbster said.

Both Herbster and Security Director Verne McClurg refused to say if they knew the suspect's name or not. They also refused to give a physical description. Herbster said the man would be turned over to city authorities upon apprehension.

Head Librarian Dr. John Christ expressed a need for a stronger security force. "We have received good support from security but we need more," he said. Christ has requested to have an officer assigned to the library but said there isn't enough personnel for that. "Mr. McClurg has a budget like everyone else," said Christ.

Employees Instructed

Christ reported that library employees have been instructed not to try to apprehend the individual. "This type is generally not violent," he said, "it might be better to ignore him."

This type of activity is not an uncommon occurrence, the librarian said, most libraries are plagued by problems like this because of their very nature. The shelves provide sufficient cover for sneaking around, he said, and there are always plenty of young women to be found.

"It's a shame that libraries are a haven for exhibitionists and we are quite concerned about it," admitted Christ.

Similar Incident

A similar incident was reported by two co-eds who were approached Thursday evening by the Elmwood Park Swimming Pool. Enroute to their car, they said, a young man stepped in their path on the sidewalk exposing himself. One of the women said he had his trousers down around his knees and they had to pass by him to get to their car. She said the suspect then tried to follow but the two girls ran safely to their car.

"There just isn't enough light down there and we can't always get a parking place close to the buildings like the faculty does," she said. "I'd rather get a parking ticket than go down there again."

She described the Elmwood exhibitionist as a tall, 23- or 24-year old man with long, light colored hair.

Senate Wants Fund B Reviewed

by Dick Ulmer

The Student Senate passed an emergency resolution Thursday evening which "strongly recommends" that Fund B of the University Program and Facilities Fee (UPFF) "be subject to review and recommendation by the Council on Student Affairs".

Money from Fund B was recently used by Chancellor

Roskens to purchase china, silver and a van for university entertainment purposes.

The Council on Student Affairs is one of the university committees recently created by the Chancellor. It is staffed by three faculty members, two administrators, seven students and one alumnus.

Kris Grady, vice-president of the student body, presented the proposal, which she termed "only a recommendation". She noted, "This might serve to hinder things such as the china."

to read "proposed budgetary allocations" instead of "money allocated" by Cliff Vogt, a recently appointed CCS senator. He pointed out the need for review "before the money is spent". The proposal was then unanimously approved by the Senate.

Arts and Sciences representative Dan Haley raised concern over whether Chancellor Roskens would pay attention to the resolution. He asked, "After Roskens reads this, gives a little chuckle and throws it into the garbage — what can we do?"

Grady promised to "take it to the Legislature if necessary".

The resolution was amended

New Council of Presidents Now Formed

A new organization at UNO to be called the "Council of Presidents" will hold its first meeting tomorrow.

The council will be made up of presidents of the over 100 recognized organizations at UNO, according to the coordinator of student government's Executive Council, Greg Blodig.

"The purpose of the council," Blodig said, "is to communicate messages from the student government to the various organizations, and vice versa."

Blodig said the main idea in creating the council was to increase the communication between student government and student groups.

Tomorrow's meeting will be held in the Student Center's Organization Office at 3:00 p.m. A chairman will be elected who will sit on the Executive Cabinet of the student government.

Vice-chancellor Ronald Beer will speak to the group.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed to man the polls for the Student Senate and Homecoming elections being held today, tomorrow and Friday.

Election Commissioner Greg Blodig said the volunteers will get their meals free on the days they work. Anyone interested should contact Blodig at the student government offices, Rm. 232 of the Student Center.

IFC Dance Busted by State

The Interfraternity Council's (IFC) "TGIF Dance" last Friday was a bust in more than one way.

The Nebraska State Liquor Commission raided the Millrose Cafe Ballroom, 13209 Q St., the site of the dance, just as 17 kegs of beer were being unloaded, according to IFC President Greg Blodig.

The Millrose apparently didn't have a liquor license, Blodig said, although IFC had taken for granted that it did.

The IFC won't be in any trouble over the incident, Blodig said, although the brewery delivering the beer might be for selling liquor to an unlicensed concern.

Although IFC didn't have to pay for the beer which the brewery was allowed to take back, Blodig said the dance was still a financial failure.

"About 400 people who came, turned around and left when they found no beer was being served," he said.

"This really puts a damper on IFC events for the rest of the semester," he commented. "We don't have any working capital now."

Blodig said the Liquor Commission was probably tipped by a distributor who didn't get the IFC bid to furnish the beer.

Elections Begin Today

Student Senate and Homecoming elections begin today. Polling places will be in the Student Center, Kayser Hall and the Administration Building. Voting will last through Friday. Winners will be announced during the halftime of the UNO-Northern Colorado game Saturday evening. Candidates for Homecoming Queen are Debbie Engler, Nancy Fallor, Kristin Grady, Laura Havelka, Nancy Holtberg, Donna Iverri, and Sue Weston. The two competing for Homecoming King are Dan Gleason and Willie Bob Johnson. Information on the Student Senate candidates appears on pages 4 and 5.

Editorial

Voter Turnout Essential

At a time when the UNO administration is working to build for the future, it is the job of student government to work for the student body of the present.

This is not to say that student government officials should be a force trying to hold back progress. As the image of the University improves, so will the prestige of its graduates — past and future.

However, in its zeal to upgrade the programs and facilities at UNO it seems as if the administration often overlooks the students.

To work for the future is fine, but the students that are here now should have top priority. Unfortunately, the way things seem to be going at UNO, it looks as if students will have to fight for recognition. This job falls into the hands of the elected representatives of the student body, the Student Senate.

However, it's easy for the administration to disregard the Senate when it only represents a small percentage of the total student body.

An excuse often given by people for not voting is that they don't even know who's running. The Gateway has attempted to alleviate this problem to some degree by interviewing the candidates and presenting some of their views. The amount of space given to each person is limited and no great detail could be achieved.

But we urge you to look over the candidates running to represent your college or class, decide which best represents your views and vote for that person.

A large turnout will give the Student Senate more authority behind their actions and more confidence that it truly does represent the students in its dealings with the administration.

After the candidates were interviewed, the Gateway compiled the following list of candidates we feel would be hardworking, honest and interested:

- Freshman Class — Karen Simpson, Rich Hood.
 - Arts and Sciences — Jim Sherrets, Dennis Sullivan
 - Business Administration — Mark Houston
 - CPACS — Sid Davis, Mike Betz
 - CCS — Cliff Vogt, Dan Webster, Ken Reynolds, Darrell Vandyke
 - Engineering — Jim Beam, James Collen
 - University Division — Sharon Vecchio, Lou Soukup
- Make the Student Senate a true representation of the student body — VOTE.

LETTERS

Endorsing Roskens

Gateway,
I heartily endorse Chancellor Roskens in his decision to purchase, on the part of the University, the china service and van.

Contingent that elegant dining leads to a stronger University, let me say this:

Having enjoyed the Freshman/Parent Orientation, I was shocked and dismayed to witness on several occasions parents grabbing their incoming freshman and bolting for the door.

Why? When seeing food served on paper plates and the plastic covered couches in the MBSC, can you blame them?

It is the insight and dedication of men like Chancellor Roskens that shall realize the full potential of Omaha's University of Nebraska.

Bravo Chancellor!

Stephan Wright

Objective Language

To the Gateway Staff,

Last year I wrote a letter to the Gateway congratulating you on your recognition that work for a university newspaper is not an experience of preparation for life experience but is the real thing. Again congratulations are in order.

This time I think the Journalism Department should also receive part of the applause, for they obviously have done their work well in preparing you for journalism in the real world, at least in the realm of investigative reporting.

I should like to concur with your Oct. 3 editorial response to the Chancellor's charges that you implied wrong doing on his part. The language of your first report was quite objective. In fact you have come out on top in this verbal joust, I, as an outside observer, find it due to your precise handling of the English language, which of course implies precise thinking and a clear sense of both priorities and properties.

Turning to my personal views of the subject, when salaries at UNO — with the exception of physical educators, business educators, and administrators — do not even compensate for the rising cost of living, to see such expenditures as those you have reported in the Gateway is distressing.

To use a metaphor, the mental experience was akin to what I imagine a large portion of sand in the bowels would feel like; it conveyed a sense that something is wrong in the body. Your report was certainly not a cure, but it served as a clear medical diagnosis.

As a member of the body, only a toe at that, I have no power to administer a cure or a pain killer, I can only watch the disease run its course. It is unfortunate that the head of this patient refuses to accept knowledgeable treatment when there must be qualified doctors available.

Instead of treatment for the illness with which we are afflicted, the patient seems to have gone to a quack for a plaster or ground glass and silver, wrapped in a gaudy green bandage.

Like the rest of the toes, I wonder if I shall die with the patient. (From time to time I even hear the other toes worry that the head will have the hands chop us off out of wrath for our occasional stumbles.)

Ah well, enough dallying with metaphor. Accept praise for your good work.

Dr. Gene Russell

Vote for Representation

Students:

I hate the idea of carrying an unfortunate misunderstanding (Roskens vs. students) into another publication of the Gateway.

Ronald R. obviously has the right and power to make such purchases, as in the china incident. If this is the issue, it must be resolved by you! I believe there was nothing underhanded about this expenditure. What Ronald R. is guilty of is a case of ineffective communication.

The Chancellor isn't the only one who is guilty of this crime. UNO students must represent their opinions through available tools, such as the Gateway and Student Senate.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week ALL students will have a chance to choose, or run as, a representative of the University of Nebraska at Omaha. This is a point in time that you must take advantage of immediately. Stand behind that person who represents your opinion! VOTE!!!

Early Registration

Early registration for the second semester 1973-74 will be held Nov. 12-16 in the Milo Bail Student Center. All currently enrolled students and all inter-campus students may register at that time.

Class schedules for the second semester will be available in the Registrar's Office, Admin. 138, on Oct. 22. Students should pick up registration packets in their academic dean's office after Oct. 22. Each student must arrange to see his counselor at the counselor's convenience or as scheduled by his college.

All students who wish to take advantage of early registration must pay a partial tuition of $50.00 at the time of registration.

Students who do not register early must wait until regular registration on Jan. 9 and 10.

New Forums

Starting today the first of many weekly forums will begin. These events will be held every Wednesday afternoon at 12:30 in the MBSC Ballroom.

The subject matter will be interesting, entertaining, enlightening and sometimes controversial. Some of the things to be discussed with various people involved with the various topics are homosexuality, penal correction, the programming at universities, etc.

The host and moderator of the Wednesday Forum, sponsored by SPO, will be Heshimu Iverri, who has promised some interesting forums for everyone here at UNO, as well as the community.

The topic today will be "Everything You Wanted to Know About Feminists but were Afraid to Ask." Special guests will be Virginia Walsh, Sandy Baxter and Chrys Schoonover.

Med Applicants

All students making applications to the University of Nebraska College of Medicine should stop into Allwine Hall, Rm. 418, and arrange a time with Dr. Marquardt for their personal interview for the University of Nebraska College of Medicine.

The times for the interviews must be established by Friday, Oct. 19.

Volunteers Needed

If you have one extra hour per week and a desire to help young people, the Pottawattamie County Juvenile Probation Office needs you as a volunteer juvenile probation aide.

Anyone interested contact Mike Hogzett at 328-5623.

La Causa Meets

La Causa, a student organization for Mexican-Americans at UNO, will hold an informal social hour today at 11:30 a.m. in the Student Center's Tower Room.

Larry Barriento, current La Causa president, extends a welcome to new and former students. He expresses a desire to have Mexican-American students at UNO get acquainted.

Young Dems Today

The UNO Young Democrats are meeting TODAY at 11:00 a.m. in Rm. 303 MBSC. Elections will probably be held and plans for further organization will be discussed.

Please come and join one of the most active clubs on campus. If you are unable to attend but still interested in joining, Contact Doug Clark at 333-9047.

Bio Recycling

The UNO Biology Club is sponsoring a Recycling Collection in Parking Lot H on Saturday Oct. 13, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Club members will be accepting bundled newspaper and cardboard (no glass or metal). Student and faculty support is encouraged.

Yearbook Pages

Campus organizations can buy pages for this year's yearbook according to editor Christie Sudduth. Groups who want something special can guarantee themselves space in this way. Various organizations have already requested to buy pages, she said, and space is limited.

Anyone interested should contact the yearbook office, Rm. 301a in the Student Center or call 2730.

The following is a list of candidates who filed for the Student Senate. Information on the views of each is taken from interviews with Gateway University News Editor Dick Ulmer. A concerted effort was made to contact all candidates so that voters would have some knowledge of their views.

Freshman Class (2 Seats)

Rich Hood is a biology major and was recently appointed to a vacancy on the Senate. He said, "I feel that the Student Senate should have control of student fees right now. The administration must be challenged." He feels that attendance is an important part of being a senator and doesn't "see why anyone would run if they didn't plan on coming to all the meetings."

Edgar Sayers is a member of BLAC. He would consider himself "a special representative" of that organization but would use his "own judgment" on any matters before the Senate. Sayers is currently enrolled in the University Division, and sees student fees as the most important issue the Senate must face.

Sayers feels "senators should be more visible and they should get some feedback by mingling and rapping with the students."

Doug Bishop is enrolled in the college of Education, but has yet to declare a major. He is running because, "I am interested in politics and not enough has been done around here." Bishop says one of his main goals if elected to the Senate would be to "get the administration to go along with our views a little more."

He would like to see a student on the Board of Regents and would fight to put a stop to the selling of students' names to insurance companies.

Doug Jones thinks the recent student government retreat was "not called for — a waste of money". A business accounting major, Jones is also unhappy with the selling of students names to business concerns. He also believes, "Student fees should belong to the students".

He would also like to see "more liaison between students and the administration", a student Regent and senators who are more readily available to their constituency.

Lane Gowan said, "I am a good debator and can get my point across". He is planning to be an architect and is in the Engineering College. Gowan feels that although "orientation was a good start, larger efforts should be made to get freshmen involved in the University".

He said, "People in supervisory positions are misusing student fees. The way the fees are spent should be looked at in detail."

Pennl Pirsch, a pre-law major in the College of Arts and Sciences, wants to "become a constructive part of UNO". If elected she would work to "unify the Senate". She said, "It needs clarification of its duties and powers".

Pirsch would "absorb things for awhile" if she was elected to the Senate, then she would take action. She feels the Senate and the administration should work together on the apportionment of student fees.

Karen Simpson says she is "very serious about running" and is "someone who is willing to work hard". She has been "shocked by the tragic misdirection of fees" here at UNO and would like to see the Student Senate get complete control of student fees.

A speech/journalism major, Simpson was a debater in high school. She doesn't think that it's wrong for student government and the administration to be in "adversary roles".

Lynne Hazoka is a fine arts major. She wants to be on the Senate to "help other people". While admitting that she doesn't know much about student government, Hazoka is "willing to work at it". She sees "where the funds are going" as the campaign's most important issue, though she doesn't think it makes much difference who controls them since "they'll probably end up being used for the same things anyhow".

Patrick A. Higgins would like to be a voice for veterans on the Student Senate. He is the treasurer of the Collegiate Veterans Organization and a criminal justice major in CPACS. Higgins thinks the Senate should have the "majority of the control over student fees".

He would always try to voice his opinion at Senate meetings and would like to see an investigation committee which would look into things around campus.

Business Administration (2 Seats)

Mark Houston says he's "just an average student who wants to represent the average student". He believes in 100 per cent attendance and feels that is one of the reasons why there isn't a great deal of activity in the Senate.

He stated, "If the students can't control the fees, they don't control anything". He added, "There's a lot of improper distribution of funds around here."

Sharon Grohmann thinks a woman should have the business seat "because women are being accepted into the business world now". She is an accounting major and a member of Sigma Kappa sorority. She feels, "there's too much apathy on campus" and suggested that organizations improve themselves to attract more members.

Grohmann would like to see more speakers on campus from the business community and "doesn't want to promise anything". She said, "I'll help anyone fight for any issue that I think should go through."

John Silvers feels the present student senators don't represent the common student. He called them, "All A and B students who represent special interest groups." He would like to see parking fees completely abolished.

Stivers is a business management senior. He thinks that "students should have at least 50 per cent control of student fees" and doesn't think Chancellor Roskens should have a final say in such matters.

Dave Ingraham is a write-in candidate for the open business seat. His name was mistakenly left off the ballot because of a mix-up caused when he was temporarily appointed to a place on the Senate.

Ingraham would like to see control of student fees given to a board composed of students, faculty and administration people. He said, "Maybe the student fee is too high if things such as china are bought with it." He thinks students should be able to bring gripes before the Board of Regents more easily.

Michael Hoelsing doesn't have anything against the present Student Senate. He said, "They have been trying." He thinks the Senate should attempt to work more effectively with the administration. The sophomore accounting major pointed out that legally the administration has control of student fees, "but if it's possible for us to get them, I'm for it."

If elected, Hoelsing would try to communicate with his constituency.

University Division (2 Seats)

Lou Soukup is an incumbent, who feels he should be returned to the Senate because of the experience he has gained. He commented, "Students should have control of all student fees — even Fund B — maybe then such things as china and silver wouldn't be purchased."

He has some definite ideas on other matters, too. He says funds for the Women's Resources Center shouldn't come from student government, students should run the parking lots and there should be a student on the Board of Regents.

Sharon Vecchio is "really interested in student government," but she is worried that "students aren't concerned enough to make it work". She compared the University's recent china purchase to "a miniature Watergate — the students really didn't know what their money was going for."

Vecchio says she'll "be at every meeting" and she hopes students "will get involved by voting".

Joe Temme Jr. would like to see more input from students in future decisions at this university. He noted the attempt to raise parking fines as one case in which student input wasn't gotten.

Although Temme admitted to not being acquainted with most of the things currently before the Senate, he wants "a chance to get involved". He agrees with the theory that the administration and student government should be in adversary roles. "If there was no opposition, everything would go his (Roskens') way."

Richard Andrews is a vet who wants to work to "straighten things out in the Registrar's Office". A 24-year-old sophomore, Andrews says he is "pro-improvement for UNO". He said of student fees, "We should at least know where they are going."

Scott Mason could not be reached for comment.

Engineering (2 Seats)

Larry Jensen isn't "the type to go passing bills without knowing about them." He is a veteran and would consider himself a representative of that group as well as his college. He realizes that engineering senators of the past haven't been very active and said, "If a group doesn't take interest in a government, they'll soon find out that their rights have been taken away."

Jensen would work for improved benefits for veterans and would conduct an investigation of student fees.

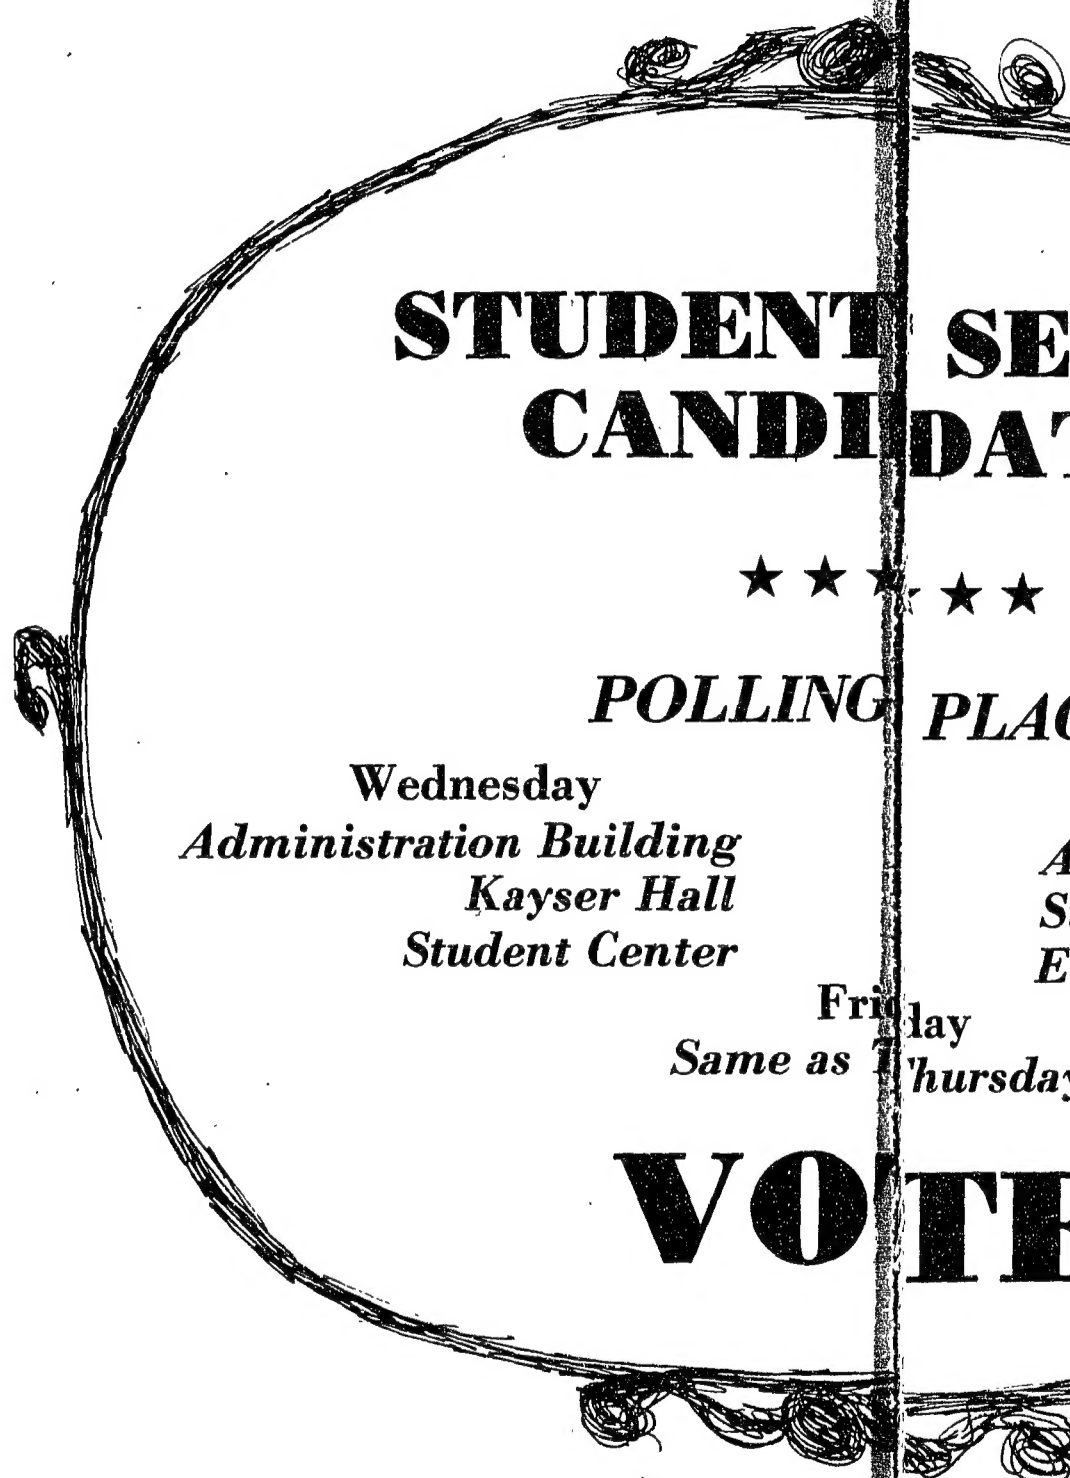

Jim Beam is also a veteran and would take a special interest in that group. He is a veteran of college life too — having attended three universities.

Beam admits that he doesn't know much about what is presently going on in student government, but he "possible" and "right". He stressed this election, a student body

College of Public Affairs and Community (2 Seats)

Johnny Harrison doesn't believe the current Student Senate is responsive to the students' needs and said, "Some of those people aren't pro-UNO." If elected he would be in favor of anything "that's going to help UNO". A member of the Maverick football squad, Harrison admits that he would be a voice for the Athletic Department.

He says he's "willing to work" and revealed that a "closer relationship between students and the administration" is the most important goal.

Sid Davis is an incumbent CPACS senator. He feels the Senate "has to learn to act responsibly". He said, "The Student Senate is just a recommending body at this time." He thinks things should remain that way until the individual senators gain "responsibility".

Davis has a pet project which he would like to see acted on. It is an information gathering and ment, but he "would be at every meeting possible" and "will stand-up for whatever I feel is right". He stressed the need for a heavy turnout in this election, noting the small percentage of the student body that voted in the last one.

Jim Collen admitted to "being very much anti-Roskens". He explained, "He's a puppet of Lincoln; he's allowed them to steal our college."

Collen is also very upset about the recent "china scandal", and commented, "He (Roskens) borrowed my money forever to buy that china which I'll never see." If elected to the Student Senate, he would fight to get all student fees transferred to student government's control. He would give the Engineering College its "first real representation since Mary Wees".

College of Continuing Studies - CCS (4 Seats)

Dan Webster is the president of the Collegiate Veterans Organization. He would "like to serve as a link between the boots, the vets and the school". He thinks that communication between the Senate and the administration "is just about nil" and doesn't think the Senate should go after student fees "in a hard-assed way".

Webster wants the administration to fund the Veterans' Affairs Office. He mentioned, "I'm not a student demonstrator, but I'd like to see a little more activism on this campus."

Stan Vanoy wants to use his college days "not only to acquire knowledge but also to make a contribution". The bootstrapper majoring in business management, would like to do that through serving on the Student Senate.

He "would represent the entire student body", and would vote his own mind. Vanoy has two primary interests: the reputation of UNO among the community and its reputation in the service. He wants both to be improved.

Frank Horna feels that following up on resolutions made by the Student Senate is important. The bootstrapper said, "I will be representing CCS — not the entire student body."

On the student fees issue, he commented, "They (the Senate) shouldn't jump out on a legal issue with only 16 per cent backing from the student body." Horna seeks keeping the Senate seats full, closer student body-student government coordination, and a need for more communications organs on campus as important issues.

Ken Reynolds says, "There is a lack of communication between CCS and the other parts of the University." A bootstrapper, Reynolds thinks many boots feel alienated from the rest of the student body. "All of us want to feel wanted and liked." He would work toward better relations. He commented, "Being open-minded is the most important thing."

Reynolds is a senior majoring in sociology. He has pledged to attend "all meetings possible" if he is elected.

Bill Conklin sees himself as "a voice for the part-time student". Though he is presently a full-timer, Conklin spent four years taking less than 12 hours a semester. He feels part-time students "are left out of a lot of things."

Conklin said he is running because of the student government retreat held earlier this year. He charges, "That money wasn't used for the good of the student body." He would like to see a Senate news circular published.

Darrel Vandyke is another of the veterans seeking office. He sees the "lack of participation by students" as UNO's major problem. He was against the student government retreat.

Vandyke is a senior majoring in business. He has two reasons for running. First, he wants more help for veterans; second, he says students should have somewhere to go if they have ideas for student government. He proposes a suggestion box.

Bob Land wants "to be proud to say I graduated from UNO". He complains, "There's no life in this school". Land thinks a good way to start school spirit would be better support for the football team. He said, "If you have something that's representing the school you should support it." He added, "What this school needs is a Bobby Riggs."

Land accused the senators of talking all the time, "but not getting anything done." He doesn't know what should be done about the student fees issue, but hopes to investigate such issues if he is elected.

Cliff Vogt said, "The biggest issue before the Senate is keeping tabs on the administration." He doesn't feel things have to be that way, but warned, "Some people have been keeping information from one another."

A veteran, pre-med major, Vogt doesn't think he has much chance of being elected because he isn't a bootstrapper and most students in CCS are. He said, "If elected, I'm not going to limit myself to representing one certain segment of the student body." He would like the Senate's committees to be more active.

R.A. Lowrey is running for the Senate on a "student opinion platform". He would like the students polled about the issues facing the Senate "at least once a month". A junior, Lowrey said, "I'll vote the students' opinion — not my own." He admits that such a plan would take a lot of work, but pointed out, "Senators should expect to work when they're elected."

Lowrey believes senators should make an effort to visit with the people who elected them.

Wally Decatur "has been infuriated by some of the things that have been going on around UNO." Many of the actions taken by the administration have "severely upset" him. He is a senior, economics major.

Decatur is also unhappy with the "apathetic attitude around here", charging both the student body and the Student Senate with "not caring enough". He believes student fees should be controlled by students and said, "People have to be at the meetings if student government is going to accomplish anything."

Thelma Carr could not be reached for comment.

Mike Betz is a transfer student from New Jersey. He was active in student government at a college on the East Coast and would like to give some ideas to the organization here at UNO. Betz is a criminal justice major.

He said, "Anything the students pay for activities should be under student government control". He also feels the Senate should try to find out what the students think on different issues. He would like to see a newsletter containing the Senate minutes.

Morgan Hodges could not be reached because of a death in the family. Betz revealed that Hodges is a transfer student from Washington D.C. and the two are running as a team.

Arts and Sciences (2 Seats)

Jim Sherrets was appointed to an Arts and Sciences College seat on the Senate last spring. He feels that it is important for him to remain in the Senate. The political science major said, "There is a big trend on the part of the administration to try and usurp all the student's power." He continued, "A lot of those people (in the Senate) don't have enough guts to stand up to Roskens."

Sherrets would like to see a student movement built here. He said, "This campus has been given the shaft — UNO is not an alternative campus".

Kathy Bergman says she has conducted some research and found that most students don't know who their senators are. If elected, she would introduce herself to the dean of her college, set up a table in the Student Center where students could come and rap with her and advocate holding some Senate meetings during the day.

Bergman is a member of the Young Republicans majoring in journalism. She feels the Student Senate should control student activities fees and would attempt to do something about parking and the new graduation fee.

Joe Sinkule "hasn't organized a platform" but feels that public relations for UNO need to be improved. He noted, "People from out of town don't even know this University exists."

Sinkule is a pre-med major and a member of the UNO football team. He promised, "If I were elected, I would try to get rid of the lackadaisical attitude of the students." He thinks, "With the right people in the right Senate seats we could get a lot done."

John Davis feels that the Student Senate is alienated from the students "because UNO is a commuter campus". He charges, "Too many senators don't stay in contact with the people they represent."

An undeclared sophomore, Davis said, "The Senate is powerless, Roskens is just using it for a sounding board." If elected he would look into the student government budget and the parking situation ("If you pay $12 a semester, you should get a space").

Dennis Sullivan doesn't think the present Student Senate is representative of the majority of the students at UNO. He said, "Student government seems to just be for the elite. They're not quite faculty, but above the rest of the students. If elected, Sullivan would "intermingle with the students to get their views".

He is a Freshman majoring in debate and is on the football team. He said, "It's about time the average student started getting involved in student government so the campus isn't taken over by special interest groups."

SPORTS

the benchwarmer by d.e. Smedley

UNO's new astro-turf facility is now well on the way to completion. I noticed on Sunday that one of the goal posts had been put in place and that the turf has been sealed down.

Athletic Director Clyde Biggers has indicated on several occasions that the field is a "multi-purpose" installation that will greatly enhance UNO's athletic, PE, intramural and recreational programs. With the installation of lights at the stadium, it can be used late into the night.

I am fully confident, after talking with Mr. Biggers and Dr. Richard Flynn of the Physical Education Department, that the new field will be utilized to the utmost. This will include "free hours," when no other activities are scheduled.

The potential the field holds for UNO is only limited in the degree to which the field is made accessible to the entire University community. If the University administration and the Athletic Department are really interested in a physically active student body and faculty, they will go out of their way to see that "free hours" are made available.

I would like to recommend that with the completion of work on the facility, there ought to be some kind of open-house down on the field for the students, faculty and staff to acquaint themselves with their new athletic and recreation field.

The University's intention of maintaining a truly multi-purpose facility might serve as incentive to Monsanto, the people who made the turf, to run an extensive survey of the durability of their product.

I noticed in going through Sunday's sports section of the World-Herald that UNO received far less in the way of coverage for their game on Saturday evening than Lincoln received for their game that afternoon. I've noticed this on other Sundays, too.

I don't mean to imply that the Mavericks should be covered as extensively as the Cornhuskers. It's just that I don't think the Cornhuskers should be covered as extensively as they are.

Reading the Sunday sport's section of the World-Herald is like reading a hymnal. Praise leaps from the pages toward heaven.

I've only been a Nebraskan for a little over a year now and a lasting impression I've acquired is that the only salvagable item in the whole state is the University of Nebraska football team. I believe that the World-Herald, in extolling the exploits of the Cornhuskers, is doing little to contribute to objective sports reporting.

I find it unusual that UNO, an Omaha-based institution, should receive considerably less attention from the local daily newspaper than the same newspaper allots to a school 60 miles away.

I listened with pleasure to Saturday night's broadcast of the UNO-Eastern New Mexico game. I was beginning to wonder if the Maverick offense was ever going to get moving. The offensive squad showed, against an already-proven-tough New Mexico defense, that they have the talent if only they put it to good use.

I was happy to see that the UNO coaches mixed up the running plays more among their backs. Both Harrison and Boyer showed that they can gain yardage on the ground for the Mavericks.

Once again the UNO defense played a superb game, never allowing the Greyhounds to launch a serious attack and holding them scoreless throughout the game.

Club Forming

A new club of sorts is being formed at UNO. Kris Berg of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department has announced the formation of a very loosely set-up club, called the "Aerobics Club."

The club centers itself around running and jogging. It has no official university connection.

Members of the club will set up a running program for themselves. They will log their progress during the semester on a chart to be located in the physical education offices at the Fieldhouse.

Anyone that runs 100 miles or more is entitled to buy a T-shirt with an Aerobic Club emblem emblazoned on the front.

A clinic on "Aerobics" will be sponsored by the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department for all administrators, faculty, staff and students who are interested in receiving some helpful information about initiating a jogging-running program.

It will be held on Oct. 10, at 12 p.m., and on Oct. 11, at 4 p.m. in Rm. 100 of the Fieldhouse. If you are unable to attend and are interested in receiving information, call Mr. Berg at 2670.

Runner's Streak Ends UNO Shuts Out 'Hounds

by Kevin Carolan

The UNO Cross Country Team's eleven dual meet winning streak was broken this past week as the Maverick runners split two double duals at Vermillion, S.D., and Seward, Nebr.

On Tuesday the Maverick squad traveled to Vermillion, to participate in a double dual with the University of South Dakota and Morningside College.

Maverick Jack Schroer maintained his composure in the squad's first five mile competition, staying with the leaders while the remaining UNO runners had to run a "catch up" race during the last mile. The effort fell short as South Dakota, with two five-mile runs under their belt, defeated the Mavericks 22-34. Morningside, who was no threat to either UNO or USD, fell to the Mavericks 15-40.

Schroer traveled the five mile course in 26 minutes, 34 seconds.

USD's Rusty Brown finished second (26:44), followed by Rusty Molstad, USD (26:47); Jim Jorgenson, USD (26:56) and Tom Mahr, UNO, (27:10).

Other Maverick finishers were: Lance Herold, 8th (27:35); Bill Melton, 9th (27:56); Erwin Clark, 11th (29:00); Bruce Westerlin, 21st (31:33) and Conroy Jeffries, 24th (32:07).

On Saturday the Mavericks traveled to Seward, for a double dual with Concordia Teachers College and Hastings College.

It was Homecoming for the Concordia Bulldogs and over 200 spectators braved the light drizzle and cool temperatures to watch them edge the Mavericks 25-30. In other scoring, Concordia made it two for two as they trounced Hastings 17-38 while the Mavericks evened their dual meet record at 2-2 by beating Hastings 19-36.

The UNO Mavericks decisively shellacked the Greyhounds of Eastern New Mexico last Saturday evening.

UNO's first well-balanced attack of the season yielded a 17-0 score in their favor. The offense clicked and the defense held the Greyhounds scoreless and unable to pose a serious threat.

UNO gained 178 yards on the ground with running backs John Harrison, Saul Ravenell and Mark Boyer doing most of the work. Maverick Frank Golwitzer also picked up 23 yards on six rushes.

Senior quarterback Bob Bangston connected on three of his five passes for 39 yards, including a 20-yard touchdown pass to Art Anderson to cap a 12 play, 67-yard drive in the fourth quarter.

as time ran out in the quarter. Golwitzer's kick was good and the Mavericks went ahead 7-0.

The second and third quarters were scoreless for both teams.

The Mavericks came back early in the fourth period for their second score of the night. The score came on a 20-yard pass from Bangston to Anderson.

With seven minutes remaining in the game, Ravenell was dropped at the Greyhound 14 leaving the Mavericks with a fourth and five. Frank Golwitzer came in to try a field goal. The 32-yard attempt was good but only after the kick hit the crossbar and flopped over. With the score now at 17-0, the Mavericks had their victory assured with six minutes and eighteen seconds left in the game.

At the three-and-one-half minute mark, the Mavericks recovered a Greyhound fumble and took over at the UNO 38.

John Harrison was top ground gainer for the Mavericks with 64 yards. Tom Manly rushed for 74 yards in leading the Greyhounds on the ground.

Intramural News

With four weeks gone in the flag football schedule, only three of twenty teams remain undefeated. The Pikes are the only "A" league team without a loss while the Shooting Rocks and the Aces are undefeated in "B" competition.

The Pikes, 3-0, are leading the "A" league's division I followed by the Bookworms and Lambda Chi, both sporting 3-1 records. The Pikes play Lambda Chi on Friday at 4:00 p.m. in the final game of a flag football triple header. The Bookworms and Lambda Chi collide in a 3:30 encounter on Tuesday.

In division II of the "A" league the Patriots are leading the pack with a 4-1 record, after ripping the Primo's 29-0 and edging the last place Sig Eps 15-8. The Collegiate Vets are holding down the second place position with a 2-1 record. The Patriots and Collegiate Vets will meet on Monday, at 3:30 p.m.

In Class "B" competition the Shooting Rocks, sporting a 3-0 record, hold a half game lead over the Aces, 2-0. Pi Kappa Phi, 2-1, is in third place in the junior circuit.

In the scoring race, Lee Wortman (Lambda Chi) has taken the lead after last week's games with 30 points. The Bookworms' Pat Lacy is second with 24 points, followed by Mike Moore (Pikes) 23 points; Jay Charonic (Bookworms) 20 points and Jim Holler (Bookworms) 15 points.

Bert Kurth, Intramural Director, has announced that the Oley's ("B" League) have withdrawn from the League and all teams scheduled to play them will be awarded a 1-0 decision.

In knee tackle, the Pikes are the only undefeated team going into the fifth week of competition. They defeated their closest rival Lambda Chi, 8-6, last Thursday evening to take the lead in the eight-team field.

UNO's first score came late in the first quarter. With three minutes left, UNO took over at its own 47 yard line. On first down, Ravenell punched the ball to the Eastern New Mexico 49. On the next play, Harrison carried down to the 41 and again, on third down, he made it to the 40 for the first down.

On first down, the Greyhounds were called off-sides and the ball advanced to the 35. With still first down, Bangston lost a yard when he fell down. On the next play, he threw an incomplete pass to Frank Golwitzer but pass interference was called and the ball was spotted at the New Mexico 20-yard line.

With the ball first and ten at the 20 and time running out in the first period, Bangston kept the ball and got down to the 11 yard-line. Harrison carried next to the five. On the next two plays, Maverick Saul Ravenell carried first to the three and then up the middle for the score
